EVERY true Democrat must feel alive to the importance of the mass-meeting to be held at 11 o'clock, at the Courthouse, next Saturday. There should be a full attendance from the country and city. The delegates look to this meeting for instructions, and will, as citizens, have a right to participate. Shelby county should be consistent and should announce a definite policy, and should do her part toward breaking up the much abused proxy system, bringing about harmony and winning a substantial victory. The voice of Shelby has been potent in the past, and it will be again if we stand together and act prudently.

THE joint Democratic Convention meets at Nashville next Tuesday, the 20th inst. There will be an unusually large attendance of delegates and interested spectators. It is looked forward to as one of the most important Conventions held in many years. A proper spirit of fairness and concession all around will keep the party together, insure a sweeping victory in November and a permanent adjudication of the State debt question. There are extremists who would rather tear down than build up, who can oppose any thing but construct nothing. There will be a few agitators in the Convention, seeking to break it up if they cannot have their own way. The people have very generally expressed their opinions as to the late so-called settlement, and if their will is respected there can no longer be any serious division in the party.

General Bate for Governor.

Cor. Nashville Banner.
ATHENS, June 12.—The suggestion of the name of General Wm. B. Bate in connection with the Governorship meets a hearty response in East Tennessee. The man has been named for the emergency, and perhaps no other name in Tennessee would be so generally approved. If the convention to meet on the 20th will nominate General Bate and commission him to canvass the State unhampered by stringent resolutions or a platform of idle utterances, the result is foretold.
Nominated and left alone to follow his own (always wise and statesmanlike) suggestions, he will stir the fire of enthusiasm in such a way as has not been witnessed since the palmy days of Jones, the Eagle Orator, and other eloquent leaders loved by the people in days gone by.
His transcendent abilities, the record of his life and the peculiar popularity which has ever followed him, whether at home or upon the field, make him essentially the one particular person upon whom the people of this State will center their support. And the now disordered condition of Democracy in Tennessee may be changed into one of entire unity and harmony under his excellent leadership, and the end we all wish for—the success of the party—accomplished. The character of General Bate is not confined to the towns and cities. He is known, loved and respected as well at the cross roads as among the humble workers of the ground far back into the hills and hollows where political fame rarely ever penetrates. His services in the party has never been properly appreciated, but while he has gone proudly and successfully, yet quietly on in the pursuit of a private profession, the eyes of his fellow-citizens have been kept upon him, and if popular will may be given expression in the State Convention, his merit is at least going to receive its due reward. The uninstructed delegates should take into account before signing the State for any other name, that General Bate has stood full-breasted and broad-braved to the enemy through all the trying ordeals that Tennessee Democracy has passed; that he has firmly and unflinchingly gone wherever duty called, without hope of reward or expectation of preference. Among all the men in the State none perhaps have rendered greater service. Looking these things squarely in the face and measuring by the assurance of decided advantage, I respectfully submit that the wisest thing the State Convention can do will be to nominate General Wm. B. Bate by acclamation, and turn him loose with his burning eloquence and unanswerable logic to tear the hosts of Hawkins' secession, and redeem the State once more from misrule. Democracy in East Tennessee means to fight, but under the leadership of Bate the spirit of earnestness will seize upon the people, and all East Tennessee will gladly go into the fray.
Will he be nominated? The occasion demands it; the unsettled and uncertain condition of our party affairs require it, and justice to a worthy, gallant, able and fearless man calls for it—while the people with whom your correspondent has talked are enthusiastic at the very suggestion. Let the convention act wisely and prudently then, and, as above said, the end is foretold—a glorious triumph and a cementing together of a people who ought never to have been divided.

First round—The men walked up to the middle of the ring and commenced striking at each other without any preliminary sparring. A few severe body blows were struck, and Weeden went down. First knock down claimed for Malony, but not allowed.

hander from Weeden started the blood over his opponent's right eyes; first blood for Weeden. Malony returned the blow by a rap about the other's eye.

Third round—Round arm slogging all over the ring, winding up with a knock down for Weeden.

Fourth round—Weeden stepped up to the scratch as lively as a cricket, but Malony's movements were decidedly slow until he got out of his corner. He came up puffing considerably, and his left eye was getting worse, while his nose had begun to swell and bleed. The men countered some rapid, resounding, body blows, and after a clinch Malony went heavily to grass.

Fifth round—The first incident was a drive at Malony's already damaged optic, which closed it completely.
This was followed up by a rattler on the mouth, that filled it with blood.
Malony retaliated with several severe blows on Weeden's ears, which, however, did not seem to cause any inconvenience. Weeden fell underneath.

Sixth round—A sharp rap on Ma-lony's chest was paid back with a knuckler on his opponent's forehead, which drew a little more blood. A clinch resulted in a fall on the ropes.

Seventh round—The men hammered away at each other in short order, Malony dealing his blows on Weeden's ear, and getting his share of the force on his left eye and nose. Both those organs were in a very dilapidated condition, and the expression of Malony's face was woe begone in the extreme.
This round was decidedly in favor of Weeden.

THE PRIZE RING. Two Pounders Get In Their Work—1200 Spectators.

A SQUARE, HARD FIGHT AND A DRAW.

Graphic Description of the Set To.

SMITH'S FERRY, PA., June 15.— Despite the efforts of the authorities, the Malony-Weeden fight is a thing of the past, and a draw. The time and location of the contest had been kept so shady, that but little attention was directed to the movement of the "fancy," who made their way in little groups of twos and threes to McKee's Rocks last evening. At the latter place a chartered steamer was ready at 10 o'clock to take the crowd, which numbered about 1200, to the scene of action. The beautiful star-light ride down the Ohio was unmarked, save as being particularly orderly for such an occasion. At about 4 o'clock the boat touched the shore about 500 yards on the other side of the State line.
After considerable discussion, the scene of the struggle was chosen in a large meadow on the property of Mr.
J. W. Cunningham, right on the State line. A better spot could not have been selected, the ground inside the ring being as level as a billiard table, and just sufficiently moistened by the recent showers to afford a good foothold, to say nothing of its convenience in the case of a heavy back-fall by one of the contestants. When the magic square was formed, Weeden, at 5:30, shied his caster and stripped himself, looking around for his somewhat tardy opponent, who had not yet made his appearance. While waiting for the latter, Weeden made several large bets favorable to his own success. After waiting about fifteen minutes Malony made his appearance in full ring costume and took a seat opposite Weeden.
Weeden's seconds were Thomas and Evans, while Malony was handled by Lafferty and Bush. Thos. Brown was chosen referee. Malony's weight was 132 1/2 pounds, and Weeden tipped the scale at 128 pounds. He wore white breeches and blue stockings, and a belt of the same color.
Malony's colors were red, white and blue. Weeden became impatient at Malony's non appearance, and made complaints that he had come there to fight, and not to sit around. As soon as both men were in the ring they shook hands and stood up for the fight.

First round—The men walked up to

eye.

knock down for Weeden.

some rapid, resounding, body blows,
and after a clinch Malony went heavily to grass.

aged optic, which closed it completely.
the mouth, that filled it with blood.
neath.

Sixth round—A sharp rap on Ma-
lony's chest was paid back with a
knuckler on his opponent's forehead,
clinch resulted in a fall on the ropes.

Seventh round—The men hammer-
ed away at each other in short order,
face was woe begone in the extreme.
Weeden.

Eighth round—Several rapid blows on the chest were exchanged, and Ma-lony got in a telling face blow without getting one in return. A few body blows were exchanged, and both rolled over.

ded signs of weakness, but led off with one of his favorite powerful cracks on Weeden's ear, knocking the latter to one side. Weeden recovered quickly, however, and they rapidly exchanged blows on the chest, which sounded for the next few seconds like the drum department of the May festival. Weeden was thrown.

Eleventh round—Weeden came up laughing and bandying jokes with the spectators, while Malony's appearance was lamentable, his face being much disfigured and his wind badly broken.
Malony kept his opponent off for a few seconds, while he struggled for breath; then Weeden forced the fighting, and they struck several wild blows until Weeden went down.

Twelfth round—Weeden got in three sounding clips in succession without return, two on the ear and one just above the belt. The combatants then exchanged visitations in the stomach and the round wound up with Weeden's receiving a stinger in the face that cut up his forehead in a very noticeable manner.

Thirteenth round—Malony aimed a rickety one at the other's face, but it was neatly stopped, and the Irishman acknowledged a noser and two on the chest. As an attempt to get his antagonist in chancery, it resulted in a fall.

Fourteenth round—Malony put in his left on Weeden's cheek with terrific effect. This was followed by some long range thumping, and Ma-lony knocked the other clear off his feet.

The next three rounds were all in Weeden's favor, and his friends were offering odds of two to one with few takers. Malony was evidently getting tired out, and his face was losing all semblance of its original self.

In the seventeenth round the Ma-lony crowd claimed a foul, declaring that their man had been struck below the belt. The referee decided otherwise amid great uproar.

Eighteenth round—Malony seemed loath to leave his corner, while Weeden was as eager for the fray as at the beginning. The round was in favor of Malony, however, when the men did get together, he putting in two heavy blows on the body and a wicked drive on the forehead, and before Weeden could retaliate Malony fell to escape punishment. Another claim of foul by Malony's backers caused a row and a general stampede. The rest of the fight, though gamely contested by the bruised, bleeding and breathless Ma-lony, was all in favor of Weeden, who hammered his man's body and face with every conceivable kind of blows, all possessing one point of similarity, in that they were very heavy. At the end of the forty first round Malony's backers, or some of them, raised a yell of foul, which the referee would not allow, and the ring was taken possession of by an excited mob and two or three impromptu fights were in progress inside the ropes, amid which the principals and seconds joined hands in the center, and Weeden said in a loud voice to Malony: "Owney, are you willing to call this a draw? I don't want to kill a man." Malony accepted the situation, and the fight was so decided. The time of the battle, which was acknowledged by all to be one of hottest that has taken place for some years, was seventy minutes.

With the exception of a bruised right eye, Weeden shows no marks of the ordeal through which he passed, and it is believed would have been good for forty rounds more. Malony, on the contrary, is in a pitiable condition; his eyes are both nearly closed, his nose and mouth are badly swollen, and his face generally has been beaten black and blue over its entire surface.
Added to this, his wheezing early in the battle showed that he was not in good condition, and if the fight had been continued he would probably have been knocked out of time after a few more rounds, especially if of as severe a character as those through which he passed. He was slow in leaving his corner nearly every time after the first dozen rounds, but it was from sheer weakness, and not the consequence of any want of pluck or determination on his part to do credit to the national colors worn around his waist. General regret was expressed by the spectators that the mill ended in so unsatisfactory a manner, and many expressions were heard of a wish of another meeting by the boys, to be fought out to the bitter end, without any outside interference to spoil the sport and prevent the best man gaining the honors that are his due. During the row at the conclusion of the fight, a man, whose name is not known, drew a revolver from his pocket, which discharged prematurely and wounded him in the thigh, though not dangerously. He was taken in charge by friends, who brought him to Pittsburg by the next train. While waiting at the railroad at Smith's Ferry for means of conveyance to Pittsburg, two rough and tumble fights took place between the partisans of the pugilists, and pistols flourished, but no shots fired, the only casualty noted being the case of the man before referred to who shot himself accidentally.

The Weeden Malony fight was declared a draw after the forty-first round. Weeden was overawed by roughs and agreed to have it a draw.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

LONDON, June 15.—A dispatch from Alexandria states that the Governor and Military Commandant admitted that they have no control over the situation, and the soldiers only obey their Colonels.

The British channel fleet, consisting of five large ships, sailed east from Gibraltar this morning.

PARIS, June 15.—Identical instructions have been sent to the French and English Consuls and Admirals in regard to the protection to be afforded Europeans in Egypt. The instructions are energetic.

ALEXANDRIA, June 15.—The Khedive has expressed the hope that 18,000 Turks will be shortly on their way to Egypt. After the reception yesterday he informed the Europeans that he had divided the town in districts and made an officer responsible for each. He said that 130 ringleaders in Sunday's riot had been arrested, and would be placed on board of a ship in the harbor. The Turkish vessel which arrived yesterday brought Osman Bey, aide camp to the Sultan, with instructions for Derwish Pasha.
Admiral Seymour has seized the steamer Marceno to convey fugitives from Egypt.

The Council of War instructs the troops to strictly maintain order.
Four policemen have been arrested for aiding the rioters on Sunday last.
A street guard, yesterday, caused a fresh panic, but Egyptian troops suppressed the disturbance.

Death of Governor Dennison.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, June 15.—Ex-Governor Wm. Dennison, known as the War Governor of Ohio, died at 9 o'clock this morning, aged 67 years.
He was Governor of the State from 1860 to 1862. He was Postmaster General under Lincoln and Johnson, Commissioner of the District of Columbia under Grant, and was prominent in other public positions. He was President of the National Convention which nominated Lincoln and Johnson, and was a candidate for the nomination for Vice President in 1872, against Wilson, and also for United States Senator in 1880, when Garfield was chosen.
He has been sick for nearly a year.
The State officials will arrange for his obsequies in the afternoon.

Bank Robbers and Counterfeit- ers.

St. Louis, June 15.—A dispatch from Kirksville says the Brookfield bank robbers are lodged in the Lincoln jail. The Grand Jury returned indictments against all of them, and each entered a plea of not guilty.
Yesterday their household goods were sold at auction on the streets of Starkville, and almost everything brought an enormous price.
One of the robbers was either a doctor or was well advanced in the study of medicine. He had a fine medical library, apparatus and all complete, including the skeleton of a child. All their library books were first class.
Nothing cheap and trashy was found.
Mrs. Mason has been released from custody.

A Carthage, Mo., special says a band of counterfeiters were arrested in Cartersville, in this county. The names of the parties arrested are Wm.
Dovall, Jess Mann, Wm. E. Davidson and Dan Kearney. Coining was carried on under ground in the drift of at old shaft in the Cartersville mines.
Plaster of paris and moulds for casting were found.
